Director of Design & Exhibit Development

Department: Exhibit & Collections

Status: Full Time

The Director of Design and Exhibit Development is responsible for providing vision, shape and design leadership to the many exhibit development and planning activities of the Museum. The scope of the position is broad and highly collaborative across the departments that comprise the Exhibits + Collections Division, as well as the Museum at large. It includes, but is not limited to, four major areas of focus: 1) conception, planning, design and execution of permanent Museum exhibits; 2) conception, planning, design and execution of temporary and traveling exhibits; 3) leadership as the Museum's in-house 'art director', responsible for maintaining high exhibit quality and aesthetic standards throughout the building; and 4) conceptual and content master planning for the Museum's future.

Qualifications

Required qualifications are as follows:

Bachelor's degree required, preferably in a design-related discipline (e.g. architecture, dimensional design, illustration, graphic design, industrial design, etc.).

Minimum ten years of professional experience is required in positions of increasing design and project development responsibility, with evidence of the following core attributes: brainstorming and conceptual skills; rough sketch, rendering and ideation skills; multi-disciplined design development and creative leadership skills; production design and design execution.

Strong oral, visual and written presentation skills.

Demonstrated success working in a multi-project environment with diverse skill sets and creative backgrounds.

Strong interest in mentoring junior staff and developing their design capabilities.

Proven experience of working successfully in an environment with aggressive deadlines and limited resources, with a strong track record of demonstrated leadership providing world-class design support in a fast-paced, complex organization.
